HOAGLAND'S
NEW PATENT SHAFT COUPLING!
W. E. COOPER
HAS PURCHASED THE RIGHT FOR THIS County of the above Patent, and will hereafter use it in the construction of all the Vehicles manufactured at his extensive
Carriage Factory,
Corner of Second and Morrison Streets.
He respectfully refers to the following
CARD.
Having examined the New Patent Shaft Coupling, invented by H. B. Hoagland, we feel pleasure in informing the public that in our opinion it is the safest and best method of connecting shafts or tongues to all vehicles that has ever been used.
It fastens without bolt or screw, and is therefore, easily and speedily separated. It rests on Gutta Percha so as to be entirely free from the rattling sound which so often disturbs restless horses. It is easily changed so that the shafts or tongue may be detached in an instant, and is convenient, safe and secure.
It is easy to change to this style of coupling any buggy or other vehicle now in use, and with small expense. We have come to the conclusion to use this new invention ourselves and recommend its use in all cases. We consider it far superior to the Brewster Patent, heretofore considered the best in use.

GENERAL NEWS ITEMS.

The American Clock Company has forwarded a car load of clocks to China via San Francisco, the first clocks sent across the continent

The ship canal which is to connect Amsterdam with the North Sea, is again in progress. It will be fifteen miles long, and will cost 27,000,000 guilders.

The profit on the rice and cotton crop of South Carolinia for one year will pay the debt of the State. Charleston is rapidly recovering its old business

The Louisville Courier Journal says that "ten or twenty times as much opposition is made to Chinese immigration by the Radicals as by the Democratic party."

So rapid progress is making in the Mont Cenis tunnel that very little doubt is now entertained that it may be completed next year. Turin is to celebrate the event by a universal exhibition in 1872.

The Nashville Banner, always the friend of Andrew Johnson, opposes his Senatorial promotion, and says his name is now suggestive of agitation, turmoil and excitement. What that journal wants is peace.

An Iowa husband having deserted his wife, the latter returned to her father's house. The old gentleman now gets from the courts against the recreant husband a verdict of $1,400 for two years' board.

The Pittsburg Commercial announces that Justice R. C. Grier, of the United States Supreme Court, will resign early this fall. He is 75 years of age, and while his mental faculties are not much impaired, he has become physically enfeebled.

Governor Baker, of Indiana, has declined to appoint delegates to the St. Louis Convention in favor of the removal of the national capital, and suggests that if the people of any Congressional District feel interested in the matter they can select delegates themselves.

The treasury of the Irish Republic, or what remains of it, amounting to about $70,000, is now in the hands of a receiver, to be disposed of as the Legislature of the State of New York shall determine. This is all that is left of the voluntary contributions, and of the proceeds of the sale of the bonds of the Republic, at the time when Fenianism was at fever heat.

The Troy Press plainly tells Mr. Pendleton that even should he be elected Governor of Ohio, he must not expect to be the Democratic candidate for President in 1872. It says the Democratic party cannot afford to throw away any more elections, and that as matters now stand, and as they probably will stand at the next Presidential election, Mr. Hoffman is the most available candidate for that position.

The New York World candidly admits that outside of New York State, the journalistic ability of the Republican party is much greater than that which defends Democracy. The World is high authority with the Democratic press throughout the country, and one and all of them are constantly making quotations from its columns. We do not expect many of them to quote this morceaux from their great party organ. It is too true.

The Austrian Minister, Von Beust, says that the "maintenance of peace will be easier if the military force of Austria is not diminished." Prussia has the same reason for not reducing her military forces. France has the same reason. So has Russia. So have all the military powers of the continent. And so the peace of Europe is best maintained by keeping five millions of men constantly under arms. How fortunate that we, with a territory nearly as large as all of them together, can get on and preserve the peace with only 25,000!

General F. T. Dent, in a letter to a Bensalaer county friend answers those who have charged Gen. Grant with favoritism. He says: "No one of the name of Dent holds an office conferred by Grant. I am the only one of four brothers who holds a federal office. I am an officer of the army, a position I have held for twenty-six years: My brother, Judge Lewis Dent, is spoken of for Governor of Mississippi, so I hear. The people of Mississippi have as much the privilege of choosing for themselves a Governor as the State of New York has, and are as free from the dictation of Gen. Grant in their selections as, I presume, New York would be."

The Chicago Tribune returns to its advocacy of the removal of the National Capital to St. Louis with a zeal and fervor which shows that it is fully in earnest and not merely playing a practical joke. The money spent at Washington does not appal it in the least. In the future the expenditures at the Capital must be on a scale of imperial grandeur, and the Tribune well says: "If this money be expended at Washington, we shall attain the most extended illustration of the patchwork of coop-pen-and-kennel architecture the world has ever known. But, if expended in a locality worthy of the National Capital, we shall be building a new Imperial Rome, the Paris of this Western world, and perhaps the London of the future."

A Washington dispatch of August 18th says: Senator Warner arrived last night from Alabama. He gives the following as the returns of the late election: The Republicans carried the First District by 2,000, the Second by 4,000, the Third by 360, the Fourth by 8,000 to 10,000. The Democrats carried the Fifth by less than 1,000, and the Sixth by less than 1,500. Grant's majority in the State at the last election was 4,200. The popular majority this election will not fall below 12,000. There being no disfranchisement in Alabama, all classes of citizens participated, and the Republicans carried the State on the platform of universal suffrage and removal of disabilities imposed by the 14th Amendment. There is no division in the party, and the Senator regards the State as certain for the Republicans in the future.

THE NORTHERN RAILROAD ROUTE.—It seems the expedition which has been exploring rather than surveying for a Northern Railroad route, have been rather successful in finding what they consider a feasible one through the Rocky Mountains, a pass of not more than five thousand feet having been discovered, and they are said to fully believe in the practicability of the route. We hope they are not mistaken. But with the memory, not yet grown dim, of the blocking up of the Union Pacific Road last Fall and winter, for months, and the complete embargo laid upon overland news thereby, it is not easy to believe that a line hundreds of miles further north can ever be kept open during the winter months, when portions of the line must lie in a region whose latitude is such that even as far south as the line of the Central Pacific the track can only be kept open by artificial covering. It is generly conceded that the Union Pacific should have been located further south. How, then, about a road a thousand miles or so yet further to the north?

NOT YET RECONSTRUCTED.—The following is a verbatem copy of a letter received at the U. S. Treasurer's Office in Washington:

CLAYTON, JOHNSTON COUNTY, N. C., August 17, 1869.

Mr. E. F. Spinner, Esq.—

SIR: I has Rec'd one of your notises to remit as a donation to the building a monument for A. Lincon. For myself I will give one negro worth ($1,000) one thousand dollars to the building and you can come and take charge of the asid propity at any time. So I will cote some of your own words in part.

With malice toward none, with charity for all, with firmness as the Constitution of the U. S. Give us to se the wright done unto others as we would wish it done unto us. Yours,

ROB'T M. BRIDGER.

Arizona—A Record of Horrors.

An appeal from Arizona, urgent and imperative, will be found in the article which we copy below from the Arizonian, of July 24th. It details a record of horrors, which is indeed deplorable, and which will unite the whole country in the demand for ample and immediate military aid to subdue the Apache, and fit that great and rich country for the habitation of white men:

We published a list, last week of those who had been slain, murdered, or taken captives by the Indians, during the past eighteen months, in Pima county alone, but have since discovered that the bloody list is far from being complete. Accounts, never published in any newspaper, and received from various sources, since our last issue, show that ten men, not spoken of in our last week's record, (four of whom were Americans and six Mexicans,) fell into the hands of the Apache, at Tubac, Camp Crittenden, Camp Bowie and Camp Goodwin. We have also received accounts showing that an additional 163 head of stock had been stolen, within the past nine months, from Tubac, Point of Mountain and Tucson—making a total of the stock stolen, in Pima county, since January 1868, 1,690 head; and stock killed, 220 head.

It will be seen that 52 persons have been murdered, that 18 have been wounded, and that two were carried into captivity, and in all probability suffered a thousand deaths. It is a sad spectacle to contemplate. Out of 5,500 persons, the population of Pima county, supposing one-seventh to be adults, we will have an adult population of 785; of this number 72 have been kill and wounded and carried into captivity, making a loss of over nine per cent. of our adult population, and probably a much greater per centage of loss of property. Like true Americans, our people are fighting this unequal contest heroically, bravely. They are supported by as brave a soldiery as ever struck a blow in any cause whatever. The officers are brave, experienced and energetic, but the number of troops is sadly inadequate.

The Apache divides in small bands and only strikes when he is comparatively safe, kills his victim, seizes his plunder, and hurries away to his mountain home, where he is secure.

The number of the military are only sufficient to guard the posts, and send out small scouts, who have not strength to follow them to their homes and destroy their crops, and fight them upon their own ground. Until this is done, of course there can be no peace.

Could our kindred know and feel how bravely the people of Arizona are facing death and suffering and all the hardships and privations of a new country, we feel sure one unanimous demand would go forth to have instant and ample assistance sent to our relief.

When it is considered that we are battling to hold an area of territory nearly three times as large as New York, every foot of which has to be fought over and over again, the magnitude of the undertaking will be appreciated. We believe that every Arizonian appreciates that he is occupying the post of honor—for it is the dangerous post—nor will they shrink from duty; but from the present appearances, unless we have more assistance, the noble little band will all waste away until there is none left to tell the story.

Our mountains are filled with gold and silver; our broad valleys produce in abundance. Two crops upon the same land yield an abundant harvest. Our herds thrive the year round upon the beautiful supply that nature has given them. We have room, and to spare, for hundreds of thousands of the poor of other countries, were it not for the Apache. May the time soon speed along when we shall have assistance that will drive the Apache from the country, or compel him to live in peace with us.

The President's Position.

A Washington letter to the New York Times makes statements of great interest, and which we regard as wholly reliable. It is said:

The semi-official statement of the President's position in regard to the political situation in Mississippi, is not new to those who have conversed with him on the subject, nor was it necessary to assure the country that his sympathies and influence are decidedly with that party in each of the Southern States which embodies the largest number of loyal men, the greatest share of loyal sentiment, and guarantees most thoroughly the security of the future. It only disappoints those who, in the absence of official expression, have assumed that he would accept as loyal and as Republican whatever was called by that name, without reference to what might be disguised by it. Of this class are the handful of so-called "Conservatives," who, for the last thirty days, have been here manœuvering to get the President committed to an endorsement of what is really nothing but the "white man's party," movement in Mississippi and also in Texas.

There is now no impropriety in adding some further facts bearing upon the President's attitude toward parties both in and out the reconstructed States.

Recognizing fully that he is the President of the whole country, he also recognizes quite as fully his duty to the party and to the sentiment that placed him in his present position, and, under his lead, subdued the rebellion. Discarding all animosity or idea of revenge for the past, yet he cannot politically discard those who may only differ with him in the degree of punishment which they desire to see inflicted for the crime of rebellion. Any one who assumes that he does not think the hundred thousand Republicans who voted for Wells in Virginia as faithful supporters of his administration as the hundred and twenty thousand who voted for Walker, makes a serious error, and as evidence of this I may say that just prior to the Virginia election, when J. F. Lewis, the Lieutenant Governor-elect, visited this city for the purpose of seeking words of encouragement for the Walker movement from the President. Gen. Grant talked freely upon the situation, and frankly told Mr. Lewis that if he had a vote in Virginia he would cast it for the Wells' ticket and the expurgated Constitution. The President sincerely regretted that should be any division among the earnest Republicans of Virginia, or any other State, and he hoped to see that wisdom manifested which would achieve for the Republican party the credit of carrying through within its own lines measures for the abrogation of all disfranchisements and obnoxious test oaths, instead of being compelled by their opponents to yield these concessions.

As to "interfere" in State elections I am convinced the President means to do so, as far as he legitimately may, call it by what name you will. To say that he must not or ought not to interfere in the approaching elections in New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio, is to assume that he will be entirely neutral as between Republicans and Democrats, and that he recognizes no party obligations whatever. Thoroughly as Gen. Grant is a President of the people, he is nevertheless as thoroughly alive to his political duty to the political party that elected him, and in the coming elections the country may expect him to use his influence and exert his power for the success of the Republican candidates whenever and wherever he properly and consistently can.

By the present law of Minnesota, the property of a married woman is not only independent of her husband, but is in no manner liable for the support of either her husband, herself, or her family.

Henry J. Raymond's Account of his Early Professional Career.

The New York Times of August 15th publishes an autobiographical fragment found among the papers of the late Henry J. Raymond, from which we give the following sketch of the commencement of his professional career:

I graduated in August, 1840, and though I could not vote, I spent the next two months in "stumping" the immediate vicinity of my native town for "Tippecanoe and Tyler too." After the election I traversed the same region in search of a select school to teach, and it was only upon the downfall of all such hopes, and in despair of finding anything to do there, that I "fled" to New York city, of which I had heard, but which I had never seen but once, and in which I knew but one human being, and he a student in a lawyer's office in Wall street. I had once seen Mr. Greeley in the Journal office, in Albany, while on my way home for the vacation after the College Commencement in 1838. I had stopped to inform the editor, as a piece of news, that the College had conferred the degree of LL D. upon Silas Wright. I found Mr. Weed and Mr. Greeley both there—both hard at work, and both greatly disgusted at the bestowal of such an honor upon so notorious a Locofoco. The thing had not struck me in that light before, but I began to be a little ashamed of having supposed I should do them a favor by giving them a piece of news which pleased them so little. But I had sent a good many literary contributions mainly critical, though some (as I then thought) poetic, to the New Yorker, and I felt at liberty on my arrival in December, 1840, to call upon Mr. Greeley and to ask him if he did not want an assistant editor. He said no, he had just engaged one, a young man from Pennsylvania. But he readily assented to my request that I might be at the office whenever I chose, in return for which I promised to help in anything that might turn up in which I could be of assistance. And I did. I forthwith advertised in the Washington Intelligencer for a school in the South, and while awaiting replies arranged to "study law" in a down-town lawyer's office. But I was at the New Yorker office every day, and for a few hours or other a good deal of the work fell into my hands. I [illegible] up election returns, read the exchanges for news, and discovered a good deal that others had overlooked; made brief notices of new books; read proof, and in short generally did all that the editor of such a paper would require. At the end of about three weeks I received the first reply to my advertisement, offering me a school of thirty scholars in North Carolina. I told Mr. Greeley at once that I should leave the city the next morning. He asked me to walk with him to the Postoffice, whither he always went in person to get letters and exchanges, and on the way inquired where I was going. I told him to North Carolina to teach a school. He asked me how much they would pay me. I said, $400 a year. "Oh," said he, "stay here. I'll give you that." And this was my first engagement on the Press, and decided the whole course of my life.

I at once settled down to work. There was not, as Mr. Greeley says, very much to do in the New Yorker, though I believe I did my share of what there was. But I extended the sphere of my operations considerably. First, I [illegible] what I deemed a first class [illegible] daily and heavy advertisement of some Vegetable Pills which had just been invented, and which were to be commended to the public favor only through the daily [illegible] connected with some leading article of the day for which [illegible] which cost me perhaps ten minutes of daily labor, I readily got the sum of [illegible] was [illegible] next to get a [illegible] and I sent proposals for New York correspondence to a great variety of newspapers, daily and weekly, throughout the country, and [illegible] were consoling enough to close with my proposals. Among the daily for which I thus engaged was the Philadelphia Pennsylvanian, [illegible] by R. M. Bissell, whom I had also made [illegible] and who was always my friend; the C[illegible] edited by E. D. Mansfield, now for some years the "Veteran Observer" of the New York Times, the Bangor Whig and the Buffalo C[illegible] Advertiser, edited by D. Foote, whom in after years I came to know, and, of course to esteem, as did all who knew him. A daily letter for each of these papers, with my law studies, my large share of work on the New Yorker, kept me [illegible] reasonably well employed, and gave me a fair income, as none of these journals paid me less than five dollars a week, and one or two of them gave me six.

I picked up now and then instructive hints during my studies of New York life. While walking on Broadway one afternoon, before I had begun to earn much money, I fell into the wake of a tall, handsome, gay [illegible] displaying himself in all the luxury of white kids and diamond studs, to the admiration of [illegible] I fancied him one of the nabobs of the town, and fell into a train of wondering thought as to how he had probably [illegible] his present height of dazzling splendor. Of [illegible] I could not wholly forbear contrasting my own position with his, though without any feelings of special envy. The next day Mr. Greeley asked me to go to the office of Porter's Spirit of the Times, then in [illegible] Nassau street, and get him a copy of the [illegible]. While waiting at the desk, the door opened and my magnificent friend of the day before, all accoutred as he was, sailed in. He walked into the back part of the office, took off, folded and put away his white gloves, hung up his hat and coat, put on an ink-stained linen jacket and set himself busily to work writing wrappers. I felt decidedly encouraged as to the prospects of New York life.

Having completed its purchase of the telegraph lines in Great Britain, the attention of the English Government is now directed by a very strong popular movement to the purchase of the railways, and it is proposed by the promoters of the scheme to commence with Ireland, the railways in that country having been fearfully mismanaged by the various joint stock companies. A committee of Irish Peers and members of the Lower House have adopted a report, in which they strongly recommend that a measure be brought in next session enabling the Government to take the railways on the basis of the Irish Railway Commission's second report

"One more Unfortunate."

I saw her sitting by the door
One afternoon in autumn:
The gleams of sunshine lingered where
Her golden curls had caught em

The skyey radiance of her eyes
Glittered with pearly showers,
As when the fairies sprinkle dew
To crystallize the flowers

My heart was filled with grief to see
So fair and sweet a maiden,
In all that wealth of golden light,
Weeping and sorrow-laden.

I lingered there, unseen, to watch
Her tears in anguish falling,
Dreading to startle her in midst
Of sorrow so appalling,

At last I quietly approached,
And stood in pity near her;
Her bitter sadness made her seem
More beautiful and dearer.

"Tell me what troubles you," I said:
She turned her head to listen,
And in the azure of her eyes
I saw the tear-drops glisten.

Her sweet glance toward me well repaid
My heart its depth of feeling,
And then she sadly made reply,
"It's onions I am peeling."

The Despot of Paraguay.

LOPEZ AND HIS SUBJECTS.

George Thompson an English civil engineer directed the engineering operations at Lopez, Dictator of Paraguay, during a part of the war against Brazil. He has lately returned to Europe, and has published a book in which he gives a curious account of Lopez and of the Paraguayans over whom this monster rules.

Of Lopez we are told that he is brutal, haughty, cruel and cowardly. He is forty-five years of age, of short stature, vain and fond of dress; was a good rider till he became stout and indolent; is very fond of his children by Mrs. Lynch, "but not of his other ones, of whom he has a number;" and has no friend alive, having shot all who in his earlier life were his companions.

He eats enormously, is a great smoker, and is an excellent judge of claret, of which he keeps a very fine quality for his own use; but, Mr. Thompson reports, serves his guests, and even Mrs. Lynch, with a poorer quality. He speaks French, but prefers Guarani, the language of Paraguayan Indians, spends a good deal of time in checker playing; places no value on human life; has caused nearly a thousand persons to be tortured to death; is insolent to all under his command, and is so arrant a coward that in the field he deprived his guard of their gaudy dress uniform, discarded his own favorite scarlet poncho, and [illegible] saddle cloth turned [illegible] out, for fear the enemy might make him a special mark.

He is artful has a smooth tongue, and the wit to cause his subordinates, by secret order, to do those acts which he knows to be [illegible] to his people. He appears to be extraordinarily suspicious of foreigners. An American named Manlove, who came into his hands in August, 1866, to offer him three [illegible] to pay [illegible] commerce, was [illegible] and after a long time shot as a conspirator. A distinguished Prussian [illegible] Major Von Versen, sent over by his government, in July, 1867, to [illegible] the war on the Paraguayan side, was treated as a spy—although Lopez pocketed all his papers, and was [illegible] told of his mission; he was put in the [illegible] and used only [illegible] after [illegible] was [illegible]

Lopez has, Mr. Thompson asserts, caused his own sister to be flogged by soldiers; and nearly [illegible] to death, he ordered not only fugitive [illegible] for a lost [illegible], but all [illegible] ners, and those of his [illegible] iers too easy to keep [illegible] shot by [illegible] and [illegible] he [illegible] to be a [illegible] master, [illegible] to the [illegible] some [illegible] have [illegible] the brave [illegible] robber rules, and [illegible] are nearly extinct. [illegible] of [illegible] friendly [illegible] ment [illegible] the big [illegible] guasseo [illegible] did or ordered to be done was right in the eyes of his subjects. A [illegible] and vigilantly maintained system of spying kept the Dictator informed of [illegible] he might have, and [illegible] was [illegible] with death. The [illegible] lived on beef, one bullock to eighty men a day; the lack of salt [illegible] great [illegible] and mortality during the war. The uniform was a white shirt, scarlet blouse, belt, white trowsers, and no shoes. Flogging was [illegible] the stick was the only arm of a corporal. A Paraguayan never complained of injustice. If he was whipped by [illegible] he said only, "If my father did not flog me who would?" A Paraguayan [illegible] his hat his comb, paper [illegible] by needle and thread [illegible] and chewing tobacco. Any one in [illegible] was the superior of every [illegible] even the judges had to take off their hats to an ensign.

Mrs. Lynch, the notorious mistress of Lopez, is [illegible] to be an able woman, seconding all his movements, and acting as the originator of public opinion [illegible] devices by which Lopez was able to rob the Paraguayan [illegible] of their husbands' money, then of their own jewels, by way of "patriotic contributions," which nobody dared to refuse when Mrs. Lynch suggested them. She even began a movement to impress the women into the army, and in fact caused them to serve as an ambulance and hospital corps, while a few actually took up arms.

Mr. Thompson says that after the last great battle Lopez fled with not more than a hundred men. He could then have been easily [illegible]; but Mr. Thompson thinks the Brazilian generals are making money out of the war, and mean to continue it; and the Brazilian government desires to exterminate the Paraguayans as a nation, and will give Lopez time to gather again and again a fresh force, so that he can never become formidable to them, and wishing each time to kill as few of his adherents as he can collect.—N.

The Stevens' Flux

Quite a little excitement was created in the Eastern States, some two years ago, with regard to a new flux, which it was proposed to introduce as an agent in the smelting of minerals and for other metallurgical purposes. Such extravagant claims were set up for it, however, by some of its more injudicious friends, that they no doubt operated to its [illegible] for there was no question was raised as to its excellency as [illegible] those who were [illegible] in its operations have [illegible] in view, and have become much interested in the various experiments [illegible] have [illegible] made also from time to time, particularly as a substitute for borax in welding iron and steel, and for its use as a flux in foundry cupolas.

[illegible] a few days a small [illegible] of the [illegible] has been received in this city, consigned to Mr. S. W. Bugbey, 406 Montgomery street. Small lots of the same have been distributed among the various foundries, which have been experimenting with it during the past week, and so far as we have learned, with most satisfactory results. It is claimed, and apparently with just reason, that by using a few pounds of this flux in the cupola, the iron is melted easier, flows more rapidly, and leaves the furnace cleaner. It appears to operate as a glazing for the ladles, causing the iron to run off more freely. Its action also appears to cause the impurities to rise more freely from the molten mass, thereby securing a cleaner and more perfect casting. It is also said to cause the iron to retain its "life" longer—to continue longer in a fluid state. We have seen some very strong testimonials of its value, for the purpose mentioned, from the proprietors of the Golden State Foundry. This flux is prepared with a greater or less degree of care, upon which depends its price—the cheaper quality being used as above, and the finer as a substitute for borax for welding iron and steel. It is much cheaper than borax, and said to be quite as good for welding. It is made from the residue of kryolite, after that mineral has been employed in the manufacture of soda.—Mining Press.

Speech by a Chinaman.

A Chinese merchant during an entertainment given to him by the merchants of Chicago, made use of the following eloquent language:

Eleven years ago I came from my home in China to seek my fortune in your Great Republic. I landed on the golden shores of California, utterly ignorant of your language, unknown to any of your people, stranger to your customs, laws, and, in the minds of some, an intruder—one of that race whose presence was deemed a positive injury to the public prosperity. But, gentlemen, I found both kindness and justice. I find that above the prejudice which has been formed against us there flowed a deep and broad stream of popular equality, and that the hand of friendship was extended to the people of every nation, and even a Chinaman might live, be happy, successful and respected in free America. I gained knowledge in your public schools, and learned to speak, read and write, act and think as you do. I rejoice it is so, and that I have been able to cross the vast continent without an interpreter, that here, in the United States, I can speak to you in your own familiar speech and tell you how much, how very much, I appreciate your hospitality, how grateful I feel for the privileges and advantages I have enjoyed in your glorious country, how earnestly I hope that your example, enterprise, energy, vitality and national generosity may be seen and understood, as I see and understand it, by our Government. Mr. Burlingame has done much to promote good feeling in China toward the American nation. He made himself acquainted with the authorities at Pekin, and with their confidence to a remarkable degree. He is an excellent man, and I believe if his advice is received and acted upon China will soon be cordial friends with all foreign powers. We already are doing something in the cause of progress and modern improvement. Steamboat lines have been established, and now we want railroads and telegraphs. This wonderful sovereignty of the Western hemisphere where the people rule, and where ever proclaiming peace and good will to all has taken the lead. China must now brush away the dust of her antiquity, and looking across the Pacific, behold and profit by the new lessons of the New World. We trust our visit may be productive of good results to all of us, and that the two great countries of East and West, China and America, may be [illegible] forever together in friendship; that Chinamen in America, or Americans in China, may find like protection and like consideration in their search for happiness and wealth.

It is related that one of Commodore Vanderbilt's daughters, who is married, was lately discovered by a friend teaching her little daughter how to mend stockings, and, on being asked why she troubled herself with such occupations, made the reply that there was no telling what women might be called upon to do in this country, or what fate awaited them, and she believed in instructing them in useful arts, as a preparation for any reverse that might possibly overtake them.

It is related of an ancient and somewhat intemperate citizen of Illinois that, having heard a youth in his presence hastily pronounce some whisky which he had tasted "devilish bad," he sharply caught him up and reproved him. "Young man," he said, "you mustn't talk in that way. Some whisky is better than other whisky, but no whisky is bad."

OF

WASHINGTON TERRITORY!

WEST OF THE CASCADES.

OLYMPIA, W. T., May 24, 1869.

THE UNDERSIGNED WOULD RESPECTFULLY solicit subscriptions to enable them to publish a MAP OF WASHINGTON TERRITORY West of the Cascades, compiled from the United States Surveys and the best and latest authorities. The scale is four miles to an inch, making the map sixty seven by fifty one inches. In addition to the topography of the country, the map shows the extent of the Surveys, the Indian and Government Reserves, the Prairie lands, the soundings of the principal harbors, and many other particulars not given in previous maps. THE SUBSCRIPTION PRICE IS TEN DOLLARS; RETAIL PRICE, TWELVE DOLLARS. The map will be furnished, colored, mounted and complete, by August 1st. It was forwarded in March to the establishment of Colton & Co., New York, for publication.

Subscriptions may be forwarded to Joseph Cushman, Receiver Land Office, Olympia; W. C. Painter, Walla Walla; A. G. Cook, Vancouver; S. J. McCormick, Portland, who will receipt.

We call attention to the following endorsements

ENDORSEMENTS.

OLYMPIA, W. T., March 27, 1869.

C. A. WHITE, Esq.—Dear Sir; Having examined your original map, embracing that portion of Washington Territory west of the Cascade Range, I desire to add my testimony to its value. Having been engaged for a number of years in the surveys from Cape Flattery to the Head of Puget Sound, I have examined this portion of your map more critically than others, and I take pleasure in vouching for its general correctness.

This map will fill a want that has long been felt, not only among the residents of this Territory, but others, who are desirous of obtaining information of this portion of the "Far West," and I trust that we shall soon see it in a form suitable for general distribution.

JAS. S. LAWSON,
Asst. U. S. C. S.

We endorse the annexed opinion of Jas. S. Lawson, Esq., and will add that Mr. Chas. A. White is a practical surveyor, and has had access to the township maps in the two Land Offices in this Territory, as also the Coast Survey charts; and we can vouch for his map of Washington Territory, west of the Cascade Range of Mountains, as being correct, and the only good map of the same territory that has been made.

U. S. MARSHAL'S NOTICE.—DISTRICT OF OREgon, 88.—Whereas an information has been filed in the District Court of the United States for the District of Oregon on the 8th day of August, A. D. 1869 by J. O. Cartwright, Esq., District Attorney on behalf of the United States, against One Trunk of Merchandise alleging in substance that the said goods were, on or about the 1st day of July, 1869, brought and imported from the foreign Empire of China into the United States and into this District without the payment of duties thereon and without a permit from the Collector of Customs for said district, and praying process against said goods, and that the same be declared forfeited to the United States of America. Now, therefore, in pursuance of the warrant under the seal of said court, to me directed and delivered, I do hereby give public notice to all persons claiming said goods, or in any manner interested therein, that they be and appear before said District Court, to be held in the city of Portland on Monday, the 6th day of September, A. D. 1869, at 10 o'clock A. M. of that day, then and there to interpose their claims and to make their allegations in that behalf.

"One more Unfortunate."

I saw her sitting by the door
One afternoon in autumn:
The gleams of sunshine lingered where
Her golden curls had caught 'em.

The shyey radiance of her eyes
Glittered with pearly showers,
As when the fairies sprinkle dew
To crystalize the flowers.

My heart was filled with grief to see
So fair and sweet a maiden
In all that wealth of golden light,
Weeping and sorrow-laden.

I lingered there, unseen, to watch
Her tears in anguish falling,
Dreading to startle her in midst
Of sorrow so appalling,

At last I quietly approached,
And stood in pity near her;
Her bitter sadness made her seem
More beautiful and dearer.

"Tell me what troubles you," I said:
She turned her head to listen,
And in the snare of her eyes
I saw the tear-drops glisten.

Her sweet glance toward me well repaid
My heart its depth of feeling,
And then she sadly made reply,
"It's onions I am peeling."

The Despot of Paraguay.

LOPEZ AND HIS SUBJECTS.

George Thompson an English civil engineer directed the engineering operations at Lopez, Dictator of Paraguay, during a part of the war with Brazil. He has lately returned to Europe, and has published a book in which he gives a curious account of Lopez and of the Paraguayans over whom this monster rules.

Of Lopez we are told that he is brutal, haughty, cruel and cowardly. He is forty-five years of age, of short stature, vain and fond of dress; was a good rider till he became stout and indolent; is very fond of his children by Mrs. Lynch, "but not of his other ones, of whom he has a number;" and has no friend alive, having shot all who in his earlier life were his companions.

He eats enormously, is a great smoker, and is an excellent judge of claret, of which he keeps a very fine quality for his own use; but, Mr. Thompson reports, serves his guests, and even Mrs. Lynch, with a poorer quality. He speaks French, but prefers Guarani, the language of Paraguayan Indians, spends a good deal of time in checker playing; places no value on human life; has caused nearly a thousand persons to be tortured to death; is insolent to all under his command, and is so arrant a coward that in the field he deprived his guard of their [illegible] did peace uniform, discarded his own favorite scarlet poncho, and [illegible] cloth turned [illegible] but, for fear the enemy might make him a special mark.

He is [illegible] has a smooth tongue, and the wit to cause his subordinates, by secret orders, to do those acts which he knows to be [illegible] to his people. He appears to be extraordinarily suspicious of foreigners. An American named Manlove, who came into his [illegible] in August, 1866, to offer him three [illegible] and to buy upon [illegible] commerce, was arrested, and after a long time shot as a conspirator. A distinguished Prussian officer, Major Von Versen, sent over by his government, in July, 1867, to observe the war on the Paraguayan side, was treated as a spy—although Lopez possessed all his papers, and was [illegible] satisfied of his mission; he was put in the chain gang, and [illegible]ped only after [illegible] 3 days.

Vague hints, Mr. Thompson asserts, caused his own sister to be flogged by soldiers; and [illegible] to destroy ordered not only fugitives for a [illegible] but all prisoners, and those of his own [illegible]oldiers too [illegible] to [illegible] shot by [illegible] and [illegible] to be a monster; [illegible], solely to the [illegible] in which some [illegible] have [illegible] as the brave [illegible] robber rules, [illegible] are nearly extinct, [illegible] their [illegible] [illegible] the big [illegible] did or ordered to be done was right in the eyes of his subjects. A [illegible]ilitary system, and vigilantly maintained system of espionage, at the Dictator's [illegible] of [illegible] he might have, and [illegible] was provided with death. The [illegible] lived on beef—one bullock to eighty men each day; the lack of salt, a great [illegible] and mortality during the war. The uniform was a white shirt, scarlet blouse, belt, white trowsers, and no shoes. Flogging was [illegible] the lowest form of a corporal. A Paraguayan never complained [illegible] he was whipped by [illegible] only. "If my father did not flog me who would?" A Paraguayan [illegible] his hat his comb, [illegible] [illegible], needle and thread, [illegible] and chewing tobacco. Any one in [illegible] costume was the superior of every civilian, even the judges had to take off their hats to an ensign [illegible].

Mrs. Lynch, the notorious mistress of Lopez, [illegible] to be an able woman, seconding all his many [illegible], and acting as the originator of public opinion, inventing devices by which Lopez was able to rob the Paraguayan ladies first of their husbands' money, then of their own jewels, by way of "patriotic contributions," which nobody dared to refuse, when Mrs. Lynch suggested them. She even began a movement to impress the women into the army, and in fact caused them to serve as an ambulance and hospital corps, while a few [illegible] actually took up arms.

Mr. Thompson says that after the last great battle Lopez fled with not more than a hundred men. He could then have been easily captured; but Mr. Thompson thinks the Brazilian generals are making money out of the war, and may [illegible] to continue it; and the Brazilian government desires to exterminate the Paraguayans as a nation, and will give Lopez time to gather again and again a fresh force, which he can never [illegible] formidable to them, and wishing each time to kill as many of his adherents as he can collect.—N. Y. [illegible].

The Stevens' Flux.

Quite a little excitement was created in the Eastern States, some two years ago, with regard to a new flux which it was proposed to introduce as an agent in the smelting of minerals and for other metallurgical purposes. Such extravagant claims were set up for it, however, by some of its more injudicious friends, that they no doubt operated to its injury for the [illegible] But as no question was raised as to its [illegible] those who were [illegible] operations have [illegible] and have become much interested in the various experiments [illegible] have made with it from time to time, particularly as a substitute for borax in welding iron and steel, and for its use as a flux in foundry cupolas.

Within a few days a [illegible] of the [illegible] has been received in this city, consigned to Mr. S. W. Bugbey, 406 Montgomery street. Small lots of the same have been distributed among the various foundries, which have been experimenting with it during the past week, and so far as we have learned, with most satisfactory results. It is claimed, and apparently with just reason, that by using a few pounds of this flux in the cupola, the iron is melted easier, flows more rapidly, and leaves the furnace cleaner. It appears to operate as a glazing for the ladles, causing the iron to run off more freely. Its action also appears to cause the impurities to rise more freely from the molten mass, thereby securing a cleaner and more perfect casting. It is also said to cause the iron to retain its "life" longer—to continue longer in a fluid state. We have seen some very strong testimonials of its value, for the purpose mentioned, from the proprietors of the Golden State Foundry. This flux is prepared with a greater or less degree of care, upon which depends its price—the cheaper quality being used as above, and the finer as a substitute for borax for welding iron and steel. It is much cheaper than borax, and said to be quite as good for welding. It is made from the residue of kryolite, after that mineral has been employed in the manufacture of soda.—Mining Press.

Garrett Davis is appropriately engaged to argue an interminable territorial suit between Kentucky and Missouri.

Speech by a Chinaman.

A Chinese merchant during an entertainment given to him by the merchants of Chicago, made use of the following eloquent language:

Eleven years ago I came from my home in China to seek my fortune in your Great Republic. I landed on the golden shores of California, utterly ignorant of your language, unknown to any of your people, stranger to your customs, laws, and, in the minds of some, an intruder—one of that race whose presence was deemed a positive injury to the public prosperity. But, gentlemen, I found both kindness and justice. I find that above the prejudice which has been formed against us there flowed a deep and broad stream of popular equality, and that the hand of friendship was extended to the people of every nation, and even a Chinaman might live, be happy, successful and respected in free America. I gained knowledge in your public schools, and learned to speak, read and write, act and think as you do. I rejoice it is so, and that I have been able to cross the vast continent without an interpreter, that here, in the United States, I can speak to you in your own familiar speech and tell you how much, how very much, I appreciate your hospitality, how grateful I feel for the privileges and advantages I have enjoyed in your glorious country, how earnestly I hope that your example, enterprise, energy, vitality and national generosity may be seen and understood, as I see and understand it, by our Government. Mr. Burlingame has done much to promote good feeling in China toward the American nation. He made himself acquainted with the authorities at Pekin, and won their confidence to a remarkable degree. He is an excellent man, and I believe if his advice is received and acted upon China will soon be cordial friends with all foreign powers. We already are doing something in the cause of progress and modern improvement. Steamboat lines have been established, and now we want railroads and telegraphs. This wonderful sovereignty of the Western hemisphere where the people rule, and where ever proclaiming peace and good will to all has taken the lead. China must now brush away the dust of her antiquity, and looking across the Pacific, behold and profit by the new lessons of the New World. We trust our visit may be productive of good results to all of us, and that the two great countries of East and West, China and America, may be [illegible] forever together in friendship; that Chinamen in America, or Americans in China, may find like protection and like consideration in their search for happiness and wealth.

It is related that one of Commodore Vanderbilt's daughters, who is married, was lately discovered by a friend teaching her little daughter how to mend stockings, and, on being asked why she troubled herself with such occupations, made the reply that there was no telling what women might be called upon to do in this country, or what fate awaited them, and she believed in instructing them in useful arts, as a preparation for any reverse that might possibly overtake them.

It is related of an ancient and somewhat intemperate citizen of Illinois that, having heard a youth in his presence hastily pronounce some whisky which he had tasted "devilish bad," he sharply caught him up and reproved him. "Young man," he said, "you mustn't talk in that way. Some whisky is better than other whisky, but no whisky is bad."

OF

WEST OF THE CASCADES.

OLYMPIA, W. T., May 24, 1869

THE UNDERSIGNED WOULD RESPECTFULLY solicit subscriptions to enable them to publish a MAP OF WASHINGTON TERRITORY West of the Cascades, compiled from the United States Surveys and the best and latest authorities. The scale is four miles to an inch, making the map sixty seven by fifty one inches. In addition to the topography of the country, the map shows the extent of the Surveys, the Indian and Government Reserves, the Prairie lands, the soundings of the principal harbors, and many other particulars not given in previous maps. THE SUBSCRIPTION PRICE IS TEN DOLLARS. RETAIL PRICE, TWELVE DOLLARS. The map will be furnished, colored, mounted and complete, by August 1st. It was forwarded in March to the establishment of Colton & Co., New York, for publication.

Subscriptions may be forwarded to Joseph Cushman, Receiver Land Office, Olympia; W. C. Painter, Walla Walla; A. G. Cook, Vancouver; S. J. McCormick, Portland, who will receipt.

We call attention to the following endorsements

CHAS. A. WHITE.

ENDORSEMENTS.

OLYMPIA, W. T., March 27, 1869.

C. A. WHITE, Esq.—Dear Sir: Having examined your original map, embracing that portion of Washington Territory west of the Cascade Range, I desire to add my testimony to its value. Having been engaged for a number of years in the surveys from Cape Flattery to the Head of Puget Sound, I have examined this portion of your map more critically than others, and I take pleasure in vouching for its general correctness.

This map will fill a want that has long been felt, not only among the residents of this Territory, but others, who are desirous of obtaining information of this portion of the "Far West," and I trust that we shall soon see it in a form suitable for general distribution.

JAS. S. LAWSON,
Asst. U. S. C. S.

We endorse the annexed opinion of Jas. S. Lawson, Esq., and will add that Mr. Chas. A. White is a practical Surveyor, and has had a [illegible] to the township maps in the two Land Offices in this Territory, as also the Coast Survey charts; and we can vouch for his map of Washington Territory, west of the Cascade Range of Mountains, as being correct, and the only good map of the same territory that has been made.

—The question of building a bridge across the gulch running down by Mason's Brewery, in the west part of the city, which is [illegible] by Front street, is being agitated by the people living or owning property in that locality. At present those living beyond the gulch have to go down by the bridge on the [illegible] road and through the toll gate in order to get to town. This being quite a more trouble and expense than is agreeable to them. The western portion of the city is growing rapidly, there being a large number of dwellings already built beyond the gulch [illegible] and others are in contemplation. The building of a bridge and the opening of Front street through the claim will afford direct access to the heart of the fine tract of land purchased by the Portland Homestead Association. Those who live out there think that it would be no more than sheer justice for the city to take part of this matter, as appropriations from the general fund for improvements in the most northerly portion of the city, such as the building of the B street bridge, etc., while nothing has been done for the southern. We think the authorities will give the demand of that portion of the city, due consideration. That the bridge will be built is a matter of course. When, is only a question of time. Those dwelling in the region beyond think the time is now come, that they have patronized the toll road long enough, and that their request is nothing more than fair and just.

—We have no doubt Alaska is a great country, for some things, and may be in furs. Not more than three days ago we heard a man who has been engaged in the fur trade on this coast for a long time, and who ought to know something about such things, express the opinion that the exportation of furs from that country for the next few years would amount to more in value than was paid for the Territory by the United States. The following, we have taken from a San Francisco paper does not look much like it:

The [illegible] Penny sailed some time since for Alaska. She went on a big "fur" venture. Interested speculators [illegible] to clear at least $100 000. She returned [illegible]. Her cargo consisted of the Captain and one [illegible], the mate and a fox skin, and the steward and a half-starved dog. A dividend of 000,000 was immediately declared.

FROM THE COUNTRY.—Mr. Jamison, stage driver, reports the roads as becoming quite heavy through Washington and Yamhill counties, the rains having contained enough to make them rather muddy.

A very heavy rain storm occurred in Chehalem Valley on Monday, raising the streams to considerable height.

Much grain is still out, a portion of which will, in all probability, prove a total loss. Mr. Jamison noticed one field of one hundred and sixty acres of wheat standing in the sheaf. None of it will be saved if the rain does not cease very soon.

Many farmers are engaged in plowing, the recent rains having put the ground in good condition.

CALIFORNIA MONEY MARKET.—From the last number of the San Francisco Bulletin we clip the following in relation to the money market in California: There is no longer any difficulty in selling sterling exchange on London, or finding coin for gram payments. Trade in the city is still dull, and merchants with heavy stocks of goods are not flush of money, but there is nothing now to [illegible] with the moving of the crops whenever it suits the farmers to sell or the exporters to purchase. Money for [illegible] purposes and for mining investments, however, is scarce—and probably will be so until the [illegible] of the city revives.

[illegible]'s GARDENS.—These vegetable gardens, situated at the western terminus of D street, are well worth a walk out there to see. Any one who visits them will [illegible] that Oregon and Portland herself does not need to send to [illegible] for anything in the vegetable line. [illegible] soon to the [illegible] and soil of Oregon is showing [illegible] By carefully mourning and cultivating these gardens, the owners have rendered them very productive, and no doubt not, profitable.

COMING AT STEAMER.—A telegram has been received here from the President Colfax, in which he states that he and the party accompanying him will come by the steamer Mikes Taylor, which will leave San Francisco this afternoon. This change is necessitated by the illness of Mrs. Colfax. They will probably arrive here Sunday night or Monday morning. Proper arrangements are being made to receive Mr. Colfax in that manner which his position and services merit at the hand of the people of Oregon, of whom he has ever been the strong friend.

SUPPER AND SOCIABLE.—East Portland Lodge of Good Templars will give a supper and sociable at their hall on to-morrow (Friday) evening. Invitations have been extended to neighboring lodges, and to all others who desire to attend and have an evening of social enjoyment. The Portland Ferry has been chartered for the occasion and will run free to all who may desire to go from the city, and return after the entertainment closes. A pleasant time will doubtless be had.

HON. W. H. SEWARD.—On yesterday morning this distinguished gentleman left for the Dalles, where he will stop to-day, returning to Portland to morrow afternoon. He contemplates going to Salem on Saturday, and back to this city, perhaps, on Tuesday of next week. After his return from Salem it is the intention to give him a public reception party, at which time our citizens can have the opportunity of meeting him.

BLOCKADED.—We notice that Taylor street is closed and presume that preparations are beginning for its improvement, something which has been very much needed for years. It has usually been as much traveled as any cross street in the city, and the nearest impassable. We believe the proposed improvement is to consist of proper sidewalks and plank roadway.

CONVOCATION.—The Seventeenth Annual Convocation of the Oregon and Washington Mission will be held in Trinity Church this Thursday evening, September 2d, at 11½ o'clock. Divine service on Friday morning at 10 o'clock with the Holy Communion and address of Bishop Morris. The Convocation will continue in session over Sunday.

HOUSE FURNISHING.—Paul Richter & Co. are now established in their new store on the corner of First and Taylor streets, where they have opened out a splendid stock of carpets, wall paper and general house furnishing goods. An examination of their stock will convince any one that they entirely appreciate the wants of this market.

MILITARY.—By a general order from Headquarters of the Department of the Columbia, until further orders, Brevet Colonel J. T. Ghilselin, surgeon, will perform the duties of Medical Director of the Department; relieving Brevet Lieut. Col. Wirtz, who avails himself of a leave of absence.

SCHOOL EXHIBITION.—A public exhibition by the pupils of Beth Israel School will be given to-day at their school house, beginning at one o'clock P. M. We understand that the patrons and friends of the school are earnestly invited to be present and witness the proficiency of the pupils.

COUNTY FAIR.—We acknowledge the receipt of complimentary tickets to the Washington County Agricultural Fair, to be held at their grounds near Hillsboro on the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh days of October.

MAJOR ADAMS, editor of the Vancouver Register, will lecture this evening at Milwaukie on the "True Progress of Mankind." It is his intention to lecture through the entire Willamette valley soon.

MEETING.—There will be a meeting of the members of the Catholic Library Society at their rooms this evening at half past seven o'clock. A full attendance is requested.

THE ELWOOD.—This schooner, from New York, is probably now in the river, though up to the time of our going to press she had not arrived.

The Transfer of Gold.

The following from the Chicago Republican of August 21st shows the view which is taken at that place of the treasury transfers to San Francisco:

The California bankers and merchants are complaining of a great scarcity of money there, and are entreating the Secretary of the Treasury to unlock the sub-Treasury at San Francisco, and let out its hoarded coin. We think this is a cool request coming from a State which has, from the first, placed itself in hostility to our national financial system; indeed, in as pronounced a hostility to it as the Southern States did during the rebellion. But the Southern States have virtually repented, and are now absorbing our greenbacks so rapidly as to cause a stringency of them at the great money center, New York. We do not think the Government should go a single step out of its way to relieve these California repudiators of the national money, by a means which would only encourage them to persevere in their hostility thereto. If there is a scarcity of money there, let them take the greenbacks and use them. They are good enough for other parts of the country, and consequently good enough for California. We should not wonder if this present tightening of the financial screw there is not just the very thing needed to bring the Californians to reason and to give currency to our greenback money in every State and Territory in the Union. We trust Mr. Boutwell will give them no more gold than the four millions he has now authorized to be transferred.

Hon. Thomas Wrightson got off the following in the last speech he made before his election to the Kentucky Senate:

"As I said before, although I have lived among you for thirteen years, have been all the time a property holder, and paid my taxes and rode in my buggy and on horse 75,000 miles in your county, I am still called a carpet-bagger! Why, I was a property holder and a resident of the county when Mr. Daley cast his maiden vote for James Buchanan, and I might mention the fact, in addition, that we have had seven babies born in our house, and every one a Kentuckian. How long, gentlemen, is it necessary for me to live here to become a citizen?" Mr. Hallam said that Wrightson was to all intents and purposes a Kentuckian, and that he came home to sleep. "I think I have given good evidence of that fact." [Laughter.]

LADIES, TAKE NOTICE!—MRS. C. LEVY has just received per steamer Oriflamme, via Pacific Railroad from New York, the first shipment of STAPLE and FANCY DRY GOODS for the Fall Trade; and as they are direct from first hands she is enabled to offer them at unprecedentedly Low Prices.

Proposals for a Steam Tug.

WHEREAS, BY AN ACT OF THE LEGISLATIVE Assembly of the State of Oregon, to provide for placing a Steam Tug on the Columbia River Bar, approved the 28th day of October, 1869, the undersigned were appointed Commissioners on behalf of the State, to invite Proposals, and contract for placing and keeping upon the pilot grounds of said Bar a powerful Steam Tugboat of sufficient size, strength and motive power for towing and piloting vessels across said bar in all weather, when it can be crossed by the best class of steamers and sailing vessels.

The consideration which the State will agree to pay, as provided by said act, is the sum of $30,000 as follows: $12,000 for the first, $6,000 for the second, $5,000 for the third, $4,000 for the fourth, and $3,000 for the fifth year, in gold coin, payable quarterly; also, the towing and pilotage at $8 per foot draft for the first 12 feet, and $10 per foot for any excess above 12 feet—and a revocation of all other licenses for the aforesaid pilot ground.

Bond and security for the performance of the contract is to be required of the contractors in the penalty of $30,000.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that the undersigned, on behalf of the State of Oregon are prepared to contract as aforesaid, and for that purpose hereby invite proposals—which will be received and considered until further notice, and none will be binding until accepted by the Commission.

THE EQUALIZER!
Treating Disease by Vacuum!
DR. H. A. BODMAN

HAVING PURCHASED HADFIELD'S EQUALIZER and the Patent Right for Multnomah county, would respectfully inform his friends and the public generally that he is prepared to treat successfully those Chronic cases on whom all other modes of cure have failed.

Having used this Instrument in connection with his former practice for about three months, he is satisfied that it will accomplish all that is claimed for it in curing Chronic Disease. He does not believe in the system of advertising cases cured, but any number of such may be seen on record at his office, consisting principally of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Paralysis, Curvature of the Spine, Nervous Debility, Dyspepsia, Weak Chest, Asthma, Narrow Chests, Weak Lungs, Weak Backs, Weak Stiff, and Rheumatic Limbs, Sciatics, Spasms, Epilepsy, Palsy, St. Vitus Dance, Prolapsus Uteri, Obstructed Menstruation, with all their concomitant Diseases, Impotency and all kinds of weaknesses of the Generative Organs. Spermatorrhœa confidently cured in from four to six weeks without medicine.

He uses other remedies when necessary, but the Equalizer generally performs the cure without the aid of any medicines whatever. It brings a greater supply of blood and nutrition to all weak parts, thus creating new life and tone, and health, and strength in those parts. It breaks up congestion and inflammation by equalizing the circulation throughout every part of the system.

Give it a fair trial and you will be satisfied with the results. It has been examined by thousands of physicians of all Schools of Medicine, and there has not been one dissenting voice to the correctness of the principle; all acknowledge that it fills a vacuum in the Science of Medicine.

National Debts—A Contrast.

The New York Times has a valuable article which places in contrast the national debts of Great Britain and the United States and shows the relative progress which is making in reducing them. It must be confessed that the contrast is striking. English ministers of late years have taken credit for diminishing their debt, and the aggregate result was recently communicated to the House of Commons by Mr. Lowe. In the ten years from March, 1858, to March, 1868, he declares that the extent of the reduction has been "no less a sum" than £37,819,000, say $183,043,000, gold—an average of £3,782,000, or $18,304,000 a year. Mr. Lowe pronounces this "progress in the right direction," and such it undoubtedly is. But it is progressing at snail's pace.

Look now at the United States. The maximum of the debt, after the close of the war, on the 31st August, 1865, stood at $2,757,689,571. On the 31st July, 1869, or one month less than four years, a net reduction had been effected amounting to $249,029,438—an average of $62,257,359 per year, or considerably more than thrice the rate of reduction achieved by England. And the process goes on in a greatly increased ratio. Since the 4th March last, a little less than six months, the reduction has been $49,500,000, or more than one-fourth of the total reduction effected by England in ten years!

The Times well observes that the relative circumstances of the two countries at the periods to which these reductions respectively refer, add in other respects to the force of the comparison. England commenced the work with many advantages on its side. Prolonged peace had imparted smoothness to the working of its finance. Its fiscal system had been rendered more productive and at the same time less burdensome. There have undoubtedly been disturbing elements during the term to which Mr. Lowe's statement refers, but the average aspect of the time has not been unfavorable. On the other hand, this country had just emerged from a gigantic and exhaustive war. Its coast and territory had been rendered unproductive. Its industrial system was disorganized. Its finances were chaotic and unsatisfactory. Its business suffered all the penalties of restriction and uncertainty, engendered by an inflated and inconvertible currency. The large reduction to which we point has, therefore, been accomplished under adverse difficulties. Its rapidity and amount justify not a little national exultation. Greece—in our country may take a lesson from the fact that members of Parliament in Great Britain are pointing with admiration to the rapid progress we are making in reducing our debt, and contrasting with it the tedious slowness of a similar work in their own country.

The Fire-Wife Future.

A writer in Hunt's Merchants' Magazine calls attention to several points which [illegible] the financial future of the country. He points out that there is no lack of capital in the loan market; that capital is in low hands; that larger amounts of the floating capital comes from [illegible] which their owners find it [illegible] to run in Wall street, owing to the frequent monetary [illegible] and the uncertainty of the future, are being [illegible] in permanent investments, while legitimate business is suffering, and trade is embarrassed. He says three inferences are drawn, [illegible] of which seems to be just: 1st, that there is plenty of money in the country to avert any real danger of a financial crisis; 2d, that such [illegible] should be promptly restrained within the limits of [illegible] and business sidemanship; 3d, that the country may thus speedily recuperate, and even by renewed [illegible] harvest, still more find itself entering upon a career of more general prosperity than it has ever yet known.

In General.

There are constantly reports about the fate of Burlingame's treaties with China. Cable dispatches now assert that Burlingame has received information of their ratification by the Chinese Emperor. If this report be true we shall probably have the whole Mongolian race over to go to school, as we are assured by the Oregon City paper that this is the great inducement which the Republicans have held out to that people to come to this country!

An Eastern paper keenly observes that the [illegible] of General Rosecrans rebuke to the Ohio Democracy, in his letter declining to be their candidate, has hardly been appreciated. The Pendleton semi-repudiation scheme is the [illegible] plank in the Ohio platform, and the [illegible] point in the General's letter is the statement that his duty to his creditors [illegible] him to decline the nomination. The rebuke is put in a covert way, but is nevertheless apparent and striking.

The New York World thinks there are many Republicans who would be quite willing to see Pendleton elected Governor of Ohio, in the hope that success would improve his chances for obtaining the nomination for the Presidency and thus create dissension in the Democratic National Convention in 1872. It is quite easy to see that this is a covert blow at Pendleton in the guise of friendship. Yet the World proposes to hope that he will be elected Governor of Ohio.

The San Francisco Bulletin remarks that the National Labor Convention has passed a resolution which ought to close the mouths of the small demagogues in our Pacific States who are trying to smuggle themselves into office by humbugging certain classes of our people. This resolution says in substance, that Coolieism, or any forced introduction of Chinese labor, is to be deprecated and opposed; but that that Chinese who immigrate voluntarily should be protected in the equal right to earn an honest living and to enjoy in peace the reward of their labor.

A city paper publishes an editorial, written in the "big bow-wow style," and familiarly addressed, "To Mr. Seward." The article is remarkable for its froth, its verblage, its meaningless platitudes, and for the self-complacency it exhibits on the part of the writer, who evidently supposed that he is writing with the greatest good taste and effectiveness. He tells Mr Seward that a prominent citizen here will take him in his carriage to Salem and Albany, and that if the said citizen does not, "toe will." It seems never to have entered the mind of this writer of powerful "leaders" that Oregon's distinguished visitor and guest may possibly be desirous of selecting his own company.

THE WEST.

The United States Attorney of Utah has given an opinion that the Mormon Church property is clearly taxable.

Hon. O. Jacobs, Associate Justice of Washington Territory, will remove his family from Jacksonville to Seattle this fall.

Watts, who killed Hibbard on San Juan Island, will be tried by the civil courts. The trial will take place soon at Port Townsend, Washington Territory.

The Jacksonville Sentinel learns that the survey of the boundary line between this State and California has been finished. The surveyor, Mr. Major, found at the coast a difference of six miles between his survey and that of Major Truax—locating the line that distance south of the former survey, thus slightly increasing the territory belonging to Oregon.

The Star relates the particulars of a fearful accident near Steilacoom. A man named Michael Eustace, while oiling a threshing machine, was caught in the gearing connecting the thresher with the motive power, and passed through a space of scarcely a foot wide, bruising his body up fearfully, cutting the veins of the right temple, and tearing the flesh off his arm from shoulder to elbow. Strange to say he was not killed, and hopes are entertained of his recovery.

A Victoria paper has the following on dit: That his Excellency the Governor is engaged to and will shortly lead to the altar an American lady a near relative of Mr. Cyrus W. Field, of Atlantic telegraph cable fame. This a very happy rumor, which we hope soon to have realized. Our interests under the confederation, will be so interwoven and bound up with those of the United States that our people would experience sincere pleasure in having an American lady presiding at our White House.

Lord and Lady Byron.

[From the Pittsburg Commercial.]

Soon after the publication of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" had made Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe the literary sensation of the day, that lady visited England, and was made much of by the aristocracy and literary classes. Lady Byron became one of her friends, and after Mrs. Stowe's return to the United States, an intimate correspondence was maintained between the two ladies. Subsequently, in 1856, Mrs. Stowe revisited England, and was made the confidant by Lady Byron of all the circumstances attending her courtship and marriage with Lord Byron—their married life and separation. At the time of this communication Lady Byron was in ill health and had been warned by her physicians that she had very little time to live. The motive in selecting Mrs. Stowe as the depository of the secret was the desire of Lady Byron to recount the whole history to a person of another country, and entirely out of the sphere of personal and local feelings which might be supposed to influence those in the country and in the station in life where the events really happened.

Mrs. Stowe faithfully kept the secret. Lady Byron died, and since her death publications have been made, particularly the recent book by Countess Guiccioli (Byron's Italian mistress), in which the whole blame of Byron's reckless and wicked life is laid to his wife's charge. It was to her narrow selfishness and icy coldness, the mishaps of the great poet were due, and while the popular mind has lavished its fondest sympathy on Byron, it has only had caustic criticism for his wife. Mrs. Stowe, after Lady Byron's death, expected that the truth would be told in England, but as it has not, and as fresh provocation has been given by the book of Byron's former mistress, and its extensive circulation in the United States, she deems it her duty to make public the disclosures made to her by Lady Byron, whom Mrs. Stowe not only believes to have been a lady of extraordinary talent and genius, but one of the most sincerely devout, Christian and charitable women in England—one in whom long suffering had developed traits of angelic holiness.

Lady Byron, according to Mrs. Stowe—and this part of the story we shall pass over briefly—in pursuance conscience to Lord Byron. Soon after marriage she became acquainted with the terrible secret that afterwards shaped both their lives. Byron had become the father of a child by an incestuous liason with his sister. It was his consciousness that his wife had discovered the crime that drove him so near to madness, and inspired in his mind a hatred of her. The sister was an inmate of their house. Lady Byron, according to Mrs. Stowe, did not leave her husband, but was driven from home that he might give himself up to the guilty infatuation that was consuming him. When she went to his room to bid him a last farewell, she found Byron and the partner of his sin sitting together. She said: "Byron, I come to say good bye," offering at the same time her hand. He put his hands behind him and retreated to the mantle piece, and looking around at the two women that stood there, with a sarcastic smile, said: "When shall we three meet again!" Lady Byron answered, "In Heaven, I trust," and these were her last words to him on earth. To get at the depth of Lord Byron's depravity did decide, after reading this it is only necessary to read the "Fare Thee Well" he subsequently addressed to Lady Byron through the printer—

> "Fare thee well, and if forever,
> Still forever fare thee well,
> Even though unforgiving, never
> 'Gainst thee shall my heart rebel."

Before their separation, Lord Byron attempted to make his wife the accomplice in his crime, and by destroying her faith in christianity and confusing her sense of right and wrong, to bring her into the ranks of those convenient women who regard the marriage tie only a friendly license on both sides. All his powerful intellect was brought to bear to produce this result. He advocated the good humored marriage of the continent, with its mutual infidelities, and gave her to understand that only in this way could they have a useful and friendly life. She answered him, simply, "I am too fruly your friend to do this."

Mrs. Stowe also narrates the brutality of Byron towards his wife during the sensitive period that preceded the birth of their first and only child. Her invariable excuse for these paroxisms of unmanly brutality was that he was insane. When her child was only five weeks old he expelled her from his house; she was informed by him in a note that he could not and would not longer have her about the house.

Lord Byron went to the continent, and in the tragedy of "Manfred," which he conceived and partly wrote out in Switzerland, he rehearsed the story of his own life. Manfred is a gloomy misanthrope, dwelling with impatient remorse on the memory of an incestuous passion, which has been the destruction of his sister for this life and the life to come. In the drama of "Cain," the same subject is dwelt upon. That Byron knew his own heart and judged himself severely, Mrs. Stowe declares is apparent from his writings. Lady Byron made but one condition with him, in preserving the secret of his fault. She had him in her power and she exacted that the unhappy partner of her sins should not follow him out of England, and that the ruinous intrigue should be given up. Her inflexibility on this point kept up his enmity, which constantly expressed itself in some publication or other, which drew her and her private relations with him before the public.

When Byron broke away from his unworthy life on the continent and went to Greece, Lady Byron was rejoiced in the hope of his better nature triumphing. Mrs. Stowe says her love of him was intense and unchangeable. To a friend who said to her, "How could you love him?" she answered briefly, "My dear, there was an angel in him." When his body servant, Fletcher, returned again to England, Lady Byron sent for him, and walked the room in convulsive struggles to repress her tears and sobs, while she over and over again strove to elicit something from him which would enlighten her upon what his last message had been. Byron, dying, it will be recollected, called Fletcher to him and said, "Go to my sister—tell her go to Lady Byron—you will see her and say—" He talked incoherently for twenty minutes, muttering his wife, daughter and sister's name; he then said to Fletcher, "Now I have told you all." Fletcher replied he had not understood a word. "It is too late," exclaimed Byron, "all is now over." He died muttering "my sister—my child."

Lady Byron's subsequent life, Mrs. Stowe says was a record of noble and skillfully administered charities. There was no form of human suffering that did not find with her refuge and help. She gave not only systematically but impulsively. Her daughter inherited from her father brilliant talents and morbid sensibility, and her girlhood was a source of more anxiety than comfort, she married a man of fashion—ran a brilliant career, and died of a lingering and painful disease, but Mrs. Stowe says, it was on the bosom of her mother that she leaned as she went down into the dark valley. There was an unfortunate child of sin, born with the curse upon her, over whose wayward nature Lady Byron watched with a mother's tenderness; and "the person."—Mrs. Stowe does not say sister—"whose relations with Byron had been so disastrous, who in the latter years of her life, felt Lady Byron's loving and unbobbling influence, and in her last sickness and dying hours looked to her for consolation and help."

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO SEPTEMBER 1.

Washington News.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—A dispatch says no information in regard to the action of Spain on the proposition to settlement has yet been received at the State Department.

The Cubans offer to pay the price of the public buildings and their share of the public debt. The independence of the Island to be ceded first.

A Washington special says that Burlingame has telegraphed to the Government stating that it was not understood that the Chinese government would ratify the treaty before his return. He denies that the treaty has been rejected by China.

Gov. Senter had an interview with the President at noon, when the matter of calling the old Legislature together to ratify the Fifteenth Amendment was discussed. Senter passed the opinion that the new Legislature would ratify, and it was agreed not to be advisable to assemble the old Legislature on account of the legal doubt of its right to sit.

Judge Dent left for Mississippi last night. It has transpired that the President opposed him from the first, telling Dent his move was simply a trick to carry the State by a use of the name Republican.

New York News.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—The brewery of Kerchoff & Co., Westchester county, was seized for violation of the Revenue laws. Their papers were held for examination. A hundred thousand dollars' worth of lager is held to await the trial.

Advices from Scranton say the miners are not at work to day, but the invaders have been cleared away and the prospects of an early settlement of the trouble are satisfactory.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—A special from Boston says Pearl street is a heavy sufferer by the recent failure of a boot and shoe firm at St. Louis. The claims of seven firms amount to $200,000, and three houses are nearly ruined.

Quebec Dispatch.

QUEBEC, Aug. 31.—The ship laborers are on a strike, and the trade of this port is almost at a stand still. Yesterday the laborers' society, numbering 37 person, marched in procession through the streets. Their conduct was so disorderly that the military were called out to prevent a riot. The Mayor and several prominent citizens were very roughly handled.

Cotton Mill Burned.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 31.—The cotton mill of Sheldon & Son, Barbourville, was burned yesterday. Loss, $10,000.

New York Politics.

ALBANY, Aug. 31.—The Democratic State Convention is called for Sept. 22d, at Syracuse.

Fire at Cape May.

CAPE MAY, Aug. 31.—Among the buildings burned this morning are the Postoffice, City Surveyor's office, United States Hotel, American Row, formerly Mercantile Hotel, including several stores, Ferrie's College, McMacking's Atlantic Hotel, with all the property on both sides of Decatur street. Everything is destroyed from Ocean street, on the east to [illegible] on the west, and from Washington street north to the beach on the south, except the Columbia House. The estimated loss is $175,000. The United States Hotel was sold last week for $90 000 to Chas. Conway, of Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 31.—The loss by the Cape May fire is $250,000. Bolnton, the pearl diver, in whose store the fire commenced, has been arrested on suspicion of incendiarism.

Boston Dispatch.

BOSTON, Aug. 31.—The gas in an empty oil tank of a freight train on the Boston and Albany Railroad exploded, and Samuel Preston, the Conductor, was burned to death.

An apothecary's clerk sold laudanum for rhubarb and caused the death of Mrs. Norton. He is held in bail on a charge of manslaughter.

Decrease of the National Debt.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—The Department statement shows a decrease during this month of five million six hundred thousand dollars, exclusive of eleven million dollars disbursed to pay pensions, which makes a decrease since march of forty-nine million five hundred thousand dollars.

Fire in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1.—A fire destroyed the private club stable on Broad street. Out of nearly forty valuable horses only one was saved, and he was badly scarred. Several carriages were saved and a large number destroyed. Loss $30,000.

Albany Dispatch.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 1.—There is trouble in the First National Bank of this city with the Cashier, Adam Van Allen, who had formerly borne a high reputation. He is in the city and says he intends to remain to face all the charges the Directors are instituting.

Miscellaneous.

New York, Sept. 1.—Some of the fractional currency furnished by New York to companies, is said to be so badly printed as to be unfit for circulation.

Dexter yesterday trotted one mile in 2:21¾ in a road wagon. It was driven by Mr. Bonner himself.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 31.—The Cincinnati-California Excursionists arrived at Lafayette, Ind., at 6 P. M.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—The National Temperance Convention meets here to-day. A preliminary meeting was held last night to consult upon the policy advisable to be adopted.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1.—The loss by the Bread street fire is estimated at from $80,000 to $100,000, mostly on paintings.

QUINCY, ILL., Sept. 1.—The Cincinnati Commercial excursion party to San Francisco, passed through here this morning and expect to arrive at Omaha this evening.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—The Tribune's New York special says the Sun has an intercepted letter from Minister Roberts to the Captain General of Cuba. Roberts says twelve gunboats will be ready for armament on September 15th, but under existing circumstances he has advised the agent not to purchase the armament at present. He thinks the purchase of the armament would leave the administration a pretext to detain the boats till Congress meets. He thinks Secretary Fish respects the Spanish flag more on account of the Alabama claims than out of respect for the Spanish Government. He does not think the Cubans will have belligerent rights till Congress meets, but thinks Congress will demand the acknowledgement of Cuban independence. He has repeatedly urged that 15,000 more troops be sent to Cuba for the partial reason that it would diminish American sompathy with Cuba. He says General Prim will send 6,000 men in October, if he can spare them. He advises that no sea port be allowed to fall into American hands on account of the facilities it would give the insurgents. He urges that all drafts for gunboats be paid promptly to avoid annoyance and delay.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

LONDON, Aug. 31.—The London Rowing Club gave a banquet to the Harvards last evening. The party numbered about one hundred. The principal toast was by Dickens, who complimented both the Oxfords and Harvards. Simmons responded for the Harvards and Willis for the Oxfords.

It is said the quarrel between Austria and Prussia is likely to be amicably settled. Von Beust has made friendly overtures to the Prussian Government.

The story of the conspiracy, followed by executions, on board the U. S. frigate Sabine, at Cherbourg is absolutely contradicted.

A grand fete was given at the Crystal Palace last evening in honor of the Harvard and Oxford crews, by the London Rawing Club.

Layton, President of the Club occupied the Chair All the members of the Harvard crew were present, except Loring, Willis alone representing the Oxford. There were also present 120 invited guests, including Chas. Dickens, Thomas Hughes, Edmund Yates, Captain Anderson, and many other notables. Motley was unavoidably absent for dinner. Chas. Dickens proposed the toast of the evening: "The Harvard and Oxford crews," accompanying it with a speech paying a high compliment to the Harvard crew. He regretted the absence of the Oxford men. Said they had won so often they could afford to lose in the event of another contest. He wished the Harvards good speed to their home, which would find an echo in every corner of England.

Simmons responded briefly, expressing the warmest thanks for the cordiality and hospitality extended the Harvard crew. Looking to the crew by which they were defeated, he had no reason to be ashamed.

Willis, on the part of the Oxfords, regretted unavoidable absence of the remainder of their crew. With respect to the race, as an old hand, he said it had not been won easily. It was the best race he ever rowed.

Thomas Hughes toasted the London rowing club, and complimented the Harvard University and some of its distinguished graduates.

At the conclusion of the banquet there was a grand display of fire works.

The brilliancy and power of the sun for the past week has been highly favorable to the crops in the British Isles. No where in Europe has there been such falling off in the price of cereals as in England. Unless greater encouragement is given it will be found that foreign imports will be on a much smaller scale after the subsidence of the effects of the late rise.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 31.—Ismael Pasha has begun operations for a voyage to this city

PARIS, Aug. 31.—The Emperor remains at Ajacio a day or two and returns to Paris some time between the 3d and 9th of September. The Emperor was at work yesterday. La Reguette says the Emperor will give audiences to visitors to-day.

The taking of Bakodidi by the Mikado is confirmed. The newspapers of this city assert that Burlingame has received dispatches from the Chinese government expressing cordial recognition of treaties he had concluded with America and different European States.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—The Herald's special from Paris, Aug 30, says the city is full of rumors to day regarding the health of the Emperor. A perfect panic prevails on the Bourse in consequence While these rumors, which are the work of stock jobbers, are being circulated there is no doubt the state of health of the Emperor is such as to create anxiety on the part of the public He suffers from disease of the bladder Different political parties in and out of the Legislature, are busy speculating as to the issue of this physical affection, and the Imperial family is also alarmed It is said the Empress Eugene will hasten back from Corsica immediately in consequence of recent news of such importance from home, and the trip will be abandoned.

Prince Napoleon Bonaparte, intends, it is said, to make a democratic speech in the Senate some day during the ensuing week, but his friends are opposed to its delivery just now They allege that if the present Emperor should fall, his pretended democracy would not save his position in the eyes of the French people The Empress condemns his conduct as unwise and ungrateful.

PARIS, Sept. 1.—The Constitutionel says that Serrano is daily becoming a more prominent candidate for the throne of Spain.

Discussion of the Senatus Consultum commenced in the Senate to day.

In the Mississippi River trade there are now 910 steamers, with a capacity of 292,174 tons, and valued at $24,556,000. More steamboats are enrolled at St. Paul than any other port on the Mississippi River proper, except St. Louis, New Orleans, and Memphis.
